"How wonderfully you capture and accurately present the victorious spiritual life of the Valiant Wife. In a world bombarded by inane cliches, trivial catchwords, and godless sound bites, you open up for Christian women a trove of treasures the church inherited from King Lemuel's Mother about 2500 years ago. These are timeless truths from the heart of our unchanging, sublime Triune God. The world hates the light but by His grace we walk joyfully and confidently in it." Bruce Waltke, Old Testament Professor and Author of The Book of Proverbs in the NICOT commentary series. The Proverbs 31 Woman surprises us. Although she is the biblical picture of an ideal woman the poem never shows her praying, her children are only mentioned in passing, and her textile business receives a prominent place in the poem. What can we learn from her? In this study Melissa will walk you through the literary and cultural richness of the poem so that you can face your own world with the courage and valor that flow from a right relationship with God. This five lesson study on the Proverbs 31 Woman can be completed individually or with your small group.
